TOO MUCH RACING FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS, AND TOO MANY SHORT SCRAMBLES. It will be extremely unfortunate if the Jockey eng associations to increase the number of sprint nization this year limiting the number of short eat numbers of races for two-year-olds this on. It is cruel to these immature youngsters, with hones and muscles only partly developed, the they are subjected. The turf ad-minded and true-hearted people if two-yearold racing were abolished altogether.

It is not in the least likely, however, that the racing of two-year-olds will be given up in this niry, or in any other where contests of thoroccur, for many a year to come. The breds generally is so great that the ownnd buyers of horses will never consent to lon two-year-old racing unless they are comseled to do it by law. They are not willing to look up the money invested in young thoroughbreds ther horses until they are three years old. Neverlang run, an improvement and a gain in all things, and for the benefit of the community, if the law should put an end to two-year-old racing. Then contests between the older horses would be far more numerous and of far more interest. Excessive of thoroughbreds. Very few racehorses are sound and free from lameness or injury when they being were given up altogether there would be many excellent horses on the turf, fit to run a mile and a half or more at high speed, and with great weightcarrying power, at the ages of six, seven, eight, nine and even ten years. With two-year-old racing carcountry in these days, there are few horses of great on the turf after three years of age. of the best runners get disfigured or disabled, broken town or crippied, before they become four years id, and the number of high-class horses which are simpling at five and six years of age is very scanty THE CLUB'S PLAIN DUTY.

The Jockey Club maintains that its object is devate the standard of racing and to improve the and of horses. It will accomplish no good whatcuts down rigorously the number of sprints is control, and does everything in its power to enourage and promote long-distance racing. Excessive racing of two-year-olds and the whole inde-fensible and inexcusable array of contemptible ints and scrambles and scurries and hurried, wredit and disrepute upon racing. The American out has had a great deal of trouble, embarrassment and difficulty to encounter in the past. It will have many obstacles and perils to overcome in the future, Unless the Jockey Club sets its face like a filnt guinst the outrageous excess of two-year-old racing and insists that the turf organizations shall severely the number of short scrambles and be in serious hazard of extinction

It will be a grievous error if the Jockey Club eides to restore 1-2-3 betting in the books. This form of betting has been a prolific source of injury, vi and abuse. It is the most urgent and imperathis, the reproach against racing that it exists ting in the books is an extremely objectionable reat many scandals. Certain bookmakers have made large fortunes by betting against horses running 1-2-3, when these bookmakers had a secret understanding with owners, trainers or jockeys that the horses should not be permitted to get third places. This has been a notorious and flagrant scandal on the turf for years. The Jockey Club will be most unwise to give an opportunity for a renewal of this abuse.

THE APPEARANCE OF EVIL MUST BE AVOIDED.

Every true friend of racing must realize that the Jockey Club ought to put forth the most energetic efforts to avoid even the appearance of evel on the turf. It ought to exercise a much more careful and vigilant supervision over the sport than it has been exercising up to the present time. One this was exercised up to the present time. One this supervision over the sport than it has been exercising up to the present time. One this supervision over the sport than it has been exercised up to the present time. Rosebery for his connection with racing, have characterized the operations of the English turf as a carrival of rascality. That is an extremely strong phrase. Probably it is a grievous exaggertion. But it is certain that winter racing in New-Jersey was a carnival of rascality, and rascality of the worst sort. Moreover, this rascality was not entirely confined to winter racing in our siter State; and it is not quite certain that racing in the Empire State, even under the control of the two Jockey Club, is wholly without spot or hiemism. Our Jockey Club is modelled to a considerable extent on the English Jockey Club. If the English Jockey Club has not been able to purify racing mulrely, and if the French Jockey Club has not some away with all the scandals of the French Jockey Club has not some away with all the scandals of the French Jockey Club in this country will make a saintly, perfect and sinless institution of the American turf during this season. But it can accomplish a great deal a that direction. It has done something, Much remains to be done. It should carry out such measures of reform, measures so sweeping and radical that no American newspaper will be tempted to stigmatize the American turf as a carnival of rascality. is a carnival of rascality. That is an extremely

NOT HIGH.

One of the leading jockeys of Australia recently an Australian paper for libel. The expenses of the plaintiff were extremely heavy, as he employed a number of costly lawyers. The result loyed a number of costly lawyers. The result tas not in his favor. Some years ago Charles Wood, the leading Jockey in England after the death of Frederick Archer, sued a conspicuous laper in that country for heavy damages for alleged libel. Mr. Wood got a verdict of sixpence, a something of that sort. There is nothing more indiculous than a suit for libel brought by the trerage Jockey. The ordinary trial fury is not likely to look upon the calling of a Jockey as one of the most exatted, one of the most exatted one of the most exatted thing, to cozen him, to defraud him. There are some honest jockeys who can always be trusted, but the number of these is small. Jockeys, as a rule, are brought up in such surroundings that their sense of honor and of honesty is saidly blunted and dulled. How many jockeys are there on the turf whose careers have been entirely free from suspicion? How many are there of whom it may be said with confidence that they never pulled a horse in their lives? Tural can be trusted implicitly, and so can a few others, but there are not many of them. American jockeys resemble clossily English, French, Australian and Austrian jockeys. No one will ever mistake them for clergymen, and most of them have passages in their careers which they do not like to have brought up. Here is William Martin, for instance, the rider for Leigh & Rose. Martin has been ruled off the turf more than once, and his career has been full of scandals. Some people are inclined to suspect that he might have got off with Clifford in the Brooklyn Handicap if he had really tried to do so. Any suspicion of that sort, however, may do Martin a serious injustice; but it is certain that at various times in his career he has brought upon himself severe punishment for his performances, and more than once he has deserved that punishment. There are too many Martins on the turf, and most jockeys will lose their time, labor and money if they venture to bring libel suits against any newspapers. Most of them have such records and such careers that they would be laughed out of court if they should venture to bring any lexal proceedings against any newspapers. A racing writer in a New-York newspaper yesterday mixed up its metaphors in a way that Sir Royle Roche, could never have surpassed. Here are his words:

"Western critics, of course, may say that the East sent a galaxy of stars to Chicago last year

ent mould."

Here racehorses are referred to as "a galaxy of stars." as "swans" and "geese" and as "poor stleks" in four or five lines, while finally the allusion is to castings, since the "mould" which gives them their characteristics is spoken of.

THE RACES AT MORRIS PARK. ARAB GIVES A STARTLING EXHIBITION OF IN-AND-OUT RUNNING.

A sweltering, perspiring crowd of regular race terday. The betting ring was like an oven. More not at all likely that the special race proposed for Sheepshead Bay, and will be shipped to St. Paul this week. An attempt was made to secure Clifford said that he did not think it advisable to ship him to Morris Park with the Suburban so close at hand. David Gideon was so anxious to have the race com and start Ramapo at even weights with the McClelland would start Henry of Navarre at any reasonable impost. give attractive cards on Saturdays, so it is generally regretted that the proposed race is declared off.

A dash of five-eighths of a mile opened the day's sport. Several horses were heavily backed, with Jack of Spades the bearer of the largest amount of money. The race was a good one, as the field ran like a platoon of cavalry until the eighth pole was reached, when Addie, well ridden by Taral, forged to the front, and in the hardest kind of a drive won the race by a neck from Prig. Peter the Great was bettors on the second race, but Roller was the favorite throughout the betting. It was a moderate affair, devoid of interest. W. B. won, adding another race to Taral's score.

St. Maxim was the object of the plunge of the day. Many thousands of dollars were bet on his chances. Atropine was also well backed. St. Maxim won easily, as Atropine broke his left hind leg at the pastern when half way down the hill. August Bel mont's stable is in wretched luck, as Atropine was the only horse that was in anything like winning Atropine was led off the track. A. J. Joy should be destroyed, as there was not the slightest possibility of his racing again. Atropine was shot, Michael F. Dwyer made one of his old-time plunges Byron McClelland brought out another good thing on the bookmakers in the fifth race. The Sabrina colt was the favorite at 6 to 5 against his chances. The Commenter opened at 20 to 1, and was backed down to 3 to 1. He won in a drive by a half length from the Oneck candidate. The Coon. The Sabrina colt was third. J. B. PAY ALIMONY OR GO TO PRISON. Mrs. Grace Wallace Relases yesterday appeared in the Jefferson Market Court to press the charge of non-support against her husband, Frederick Belasco. When asked why he had falled to obey the order of the Court to pay his wife $5 a week alimony, he said he was not in a position to do so, and that he really could not afford to pay that amount. Mrs. Belasco said that she could not possibly get along on less, and that she ought to have more. Justice McMahon insisted that Belasco must pay his wife $5 a week, and that as he had failed to obey the order once he would have to file a bond for $250 or go to prison. Belasco had no bondsman and was committed to prison until he can get some friend to give bonds that the alimony will be paid.
